Belvidere Leaves the Frontier

by David Larson

The future of Belvidere's downtown will in all likelihood be tied to buildings like that above. The newer, disposable, utilitarian, slick-branded, strip mall look just doesn't fit.

There seem to be two important intersections in Belvidere, the river bridge at State Street and the intersection above at Logan Avenue running to the left and South State Street running to the right. What will these intersections look like in another 136 years? Perhaps the inspiration and motivation these enterprising individuals had was shaped by the European world that they came from. They built to impress and preserve. How many times we have seen on television quaint European villages still thriving today?

The building we see, the people, the technology and the market that sustained those business are all gone. Taken in 1883, the dirt streets have a lamp post on the corner but no stop light. Perhaps the intersection was at the time used like a roundabout... who knows?

Boardwalk sidewalks with children dangling their feet in that summer of 1883 reflect a settlement that had long since left the feel of a frontier settlement far behind, despite being less than 40 years prior to the photograph. It was a different time and a different spirit. A new business had opened that built sewing machines. As always, perception defined reality. Still, if this was not suitable, one could still pack up and move west into the frontier if so desired.

What a valuable resource this building would be, had it had never been removed, to Belvidere's future. The appearance of turn-of-the-century, small-town safety through its architecture sends a strong signal as a destination for the region. The decorations on this building overwhelm any sense of four brick walls and a roof. It is possible that a wood structure preceded this structure, but there is no known photograph of it.

The Journal has not researched who the builder was, who financed it or who became the owner of the building, nor what year it was built.

If location is the key in real estate, no doubt John Plane's Hardware Store won the prize. The first mention of this business occurs in an advertisement in 1855 in a weekly newspaper called the Belvidere Standard, published by Ralph Roberts. At that point in time, the Belvidere Standard was similar to many frontier newspapers. It was one sheet of paper, printed on one side, and sold for around a penny. It was mostly classified ads and a few short essays, with very little local news being reported. Over time, it evolved into a real newspaper, and played a role in the understanding of a new political party forming, called the Republican Party. By the 1860 Presidential Election the paper supported Abraham Lincoln, and reported on the Civil War to Boone County.

A general hardware store was the Home Depot of the day and carried everything from wood and coal burning stoves and furnaces to nails and tin for drop ceilings. Plane appears to be more than a one-man operation. Note the delivery wagon on the right and the advertising it displays. Belvidere had a population of around 5,000 at the time. Clearly, the John Plane Hardware Store wanted to reach and remind people of his business, rather than waiting for customers to develop.

John Plane Hardware Store was also a place for government services. At the time of this photo notices, could be seen in the Belvidere Standard February 7, 1882. For the south side of Belvidere, a local tax could be paid until March 1, 1882. And after that date, the "book" would be returned to the court house.

On March 15, 1883 John Plane, the son of the hardware store owner married Whinny King at her

Jeep Plant Moves to Two Shifts

FCA LLC's Belvidere Assembly Plant is laying off 1,371 workers on May 2, because of slowing demand for the Jeep Cherokee.

Workers were notified Tuesday that the plant, which currently operates with 5,300 employees working three shifts, will scale back to a traditional, two-shift schedule on May 6.

The announcement came the same day that Fiat Chrysler, the third-largest U.S. automaker, said it would invest $4.5 billion and create 6,500 jobs at five plants in Michigan to produce a new three-row SUV and a next-generation Grand Cherokee. Work will also begin in Michigan toward building an electric model of the Jeep.

The moves are part of a continuing restructuring at Fiat Chrysler, begun under then-CEO Sergio Marchionne, to focus on more lucrative trucks and SUVs, and phase out production of lower-margin sedans.

The Belvidere plant has been the exclusive home for the Jeep Cherokee since June 2017, when production moved here from Toledo, Ohio. Production was humming along last year at Belvidere, which built nearly 220,000 vehicles through September – topping the 204,000 Jeep Cherokees built in all of 2017.

When Fiat Chrysler announced in July 2016 that it was moving production of the Cherokee from Toledo to Belvidere, there were about 4,500 employees at the plant making everything from the now-discontinued Dodge Dart sedan to the Jeep Compass and Patriot compact SUVs. The automaker invested $350 million to retool the Belvidere plant for the Jeep Cherokee.

parents' home by the pastor of the South Baptist Church, which was located just to the left of the Sani & Sykes Dry Goods Store.

The couple grew up in Belvidere, early born and raised, and had been in a long engagement. Upon being married John the younger and his new wife moved to Chicago, where he was given a half-interest in a hardware store that Mr. Plane also owned. Perhaps Mr. Plane was much more enterprising that it might initially appear.

An interesting announcement occurred in a July 1883 issue of the Belvidere Standard, about the time of this photograph as follows:

"The Corner stone of the new city hall was laid on Thursday. There were no ceremonies, as is sometimes usual. In a receptacle was placed a copper box. prepared by John Plane, containing copies of the Belvidere papers, business cards of most firms in town, photographs of members of the building committee...the donor of the lot on which the building stands. The box also contains a history of the building. Unless the building burns, it is likely to be in the year 2000 or more before anybody examines the contents of that box."

Belvidere Cheer Team Earns Third Consecutive State Title

By Sofi Zeman

Whenever Illinois competitive cheer is the topic of discussion, Belvidere North High School is sure to be mentioned in the mix. Within the past three years, the Belvidere North Blue Thunder Cheer Program has established a competitive dynasty for itself, year after year, performing better than ever before. The program's morale is quite high, following first place victories in 2017, 2018, and now 2019.

On the weekend of February 1, Belvidere North High School's Co-Ed Competitive Cheer Team headed south to Bloomington for the 2019 state competition. Here, they came to compete among the most talented competitive cheer teams in the State of Illinois. Twenty-five teams in the Coed competitive class performed in Friday's preliminaries. After making their mark, Belvidere North, along with nine other schools, moved on to the Finals on Saturday. On Saturday, Belvidere North was the last team to take the mat down in Bloomington. For the third consecutive year, the team was not only able to out-do themselves, but also beat its competition. For its performance, the Belvidere team earned a score of 96.63, three points higher than the second place team, Plainfield South.

"All the hard work is totally worth it when you're up on that podium," said sophomore, Kayla Hesano.

Not only did this score win Belvidere North a third consecutive state title, it also set a record as the highest score achieved at a state meet, besting Lincoln Way East's previous record score of 95 in 2014. In the midst of victory, the team commemorated this endeavor on Saturday night, with a parade through the streets of downtown Belvidere, and a pep rally in the Belvidere North High School Gymnasium. This was followed by yet another pep rally on Monday afternoon, where the entire school was able to celebrate the team's success.

Senior Payton Keithley was ecstatic to be able to have been a part of this winning team throughout the course of his high school career. "I think it's such an amazing feeling to hear your team's name get called. In that moment, all the blood, sweat and tears - which there are plenty of," he joked, "it all becomes worth it. I couldn't think of a better way to end my senior year." Keithley served as an alternate his sophomore year, and competed in both 2018 and 2019. In the fall, he intends to continue his career in competitive cheer at Purdue University.

While the program has its fair share of seniors graduating this May, head coach Lacey Sattelberg is confident that this does not mean the end for Belvidere North's competitive reign. "We've got a lot of talent, even in our Junior Varsity programs with both of our JV teams this year," said Sattelberg, "We're very blessed that we have enough athletes that we can have two teams that were really successful this year. Our large JV team scores in varsity range. There are many varsity teams that they can beat so we've got a lot of talent coming up and I think that there's no reason we couldn't go for a four-peat."

While it is evident that they are sad to say goodbye to their seniors, the entire program is in high spirits from their most recent victory, and for those that are sure to come in the future.

Lightfoot, Preckwinkle to Square off in Chicago Mayoral Runoff

by Cole Lauterback Illinois News Network

A record fourteen candidates were on the ballot Tuesday hoping to succeed Rahm Emanuel as Chicago's next mayor.

Hovering at just over 30 percent, turnout was close to historic lows, notably for the first Chicago mayoral race in decades that wasn't largely decided before it began.

Votes won't be certified by the Board of Elections Commissioners until later, but Lori Lightfoot claimed the first of two spots heading into a run-off on April 2 with an estimated 87,000 votes, 17 percent of the total ballots.

Lightfoot, billed as a progressive in the race, would be the first openly gay mayor of Chicago and the first woman of color in the office. She touted the endorsements of a number of LGBT groups, congress members and the Chicago Sun-Times Editorial Board.

The second spot was much closer. Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle, who finished second, had about 80,000 votes with most precincts reporting. She had the backing of multiple unions, but carried the baggage of an unsuccessful campaign to tax sugary drinks in the county, dubbed the "soda tax." The tax was later repealed.

Bill Daley, the brother and son of former Chicago mayors, served as commerce secretary and chief of staff to Barack Obama, conceded once he knew he couldn't make up the votes to catch Preckwinkle.

Of the leading candidates, Daley held a significant distinction of endorsing a change to Illinois' pension system to allow for the restructuring of pensions. It was anathema for unions, but endeared him to the business community and helped secure the endorsement of the Chicago Tribune.

Illinois Comptroller Susana Mendoza, who took criticism for announcing her candidacy for mayor just days after winning her election in November, finished with an estimated 9 percent of the vote with most precincts reporting.

Fourteenth Ward Ald. Ed Burke, who is under federal indictment, won his race for re-election handily.

Democrats Unveil Bills to Rein in Prescription Drug Prices

Republicans Warn Proposals Could Backfire

by Peter Hancock

Capitol News Illinois

phancock@capitolnewsillinois.com

SPRINGFIELD – Democrats in the Illinois House unveiled a package of bills Wednesday they say would help control the spiraling cost of prescription drugs.

Republicans, however, are arguing that the entire issue of prescription drug costs is beyond the scope of state government, and that some of the Democrats' proposals could actually end up costing taxpayers and making life-saving medications less available to people in the state.

The package of bills is largely based on recommendations from Families USA, a national consumer health advocacy group based in Washington, D.C., which has been working with lawmakers to develop the bills.

Those bills call for regulating some drug prices in much the same way the state regulates utility rates; taxing drug price increases that exceed the rate of inflation; requiring drug companies to disclose more information about their prices; and creating a mechanism for the state to become a licensed wholesaler of cheaper imported drugs from Canada.

"People in Illinois are being crushed by the high cost of essential medicines," Rep. Will Guzzardi, a Chicago Democrat and sponsor of one of the bills, said during a news conference announcing the bills.

Guzzardi chairs the House Prescription Drug Affordability and Accessibility Committee, which had an informational hearing earlier in the day on the subject of prescription drug pricing and how it works.

The only person to testify at that hearing was Families USA's Justin Mendoza, who heads that organization's "state partnerships" program.

Mendoza laid most of the blame for spiraling prices on pharmaceutical manufacturers, who are granted long-term patents on new drugs that can prevent lower-cost generic drugs from entering the market for years; and "pharmacy benefit managers," or PBM's, who act as a kind of middleman between manufacturers and insurers to negotiate prices and devise "formularies" that determine which drugs the insurers will pay for, and under what circumstances.

He also said the federal government, and federal taxpayers, have a role to play because they fund much of the research that goes in to developing new drugs, even though, he argued, they don't necessarily see a return on that investment once the drugs hit the market under a patent owned by a pharmaceutical company.

"Illinois has an opportunity to act on all these pieces, and to act on drug prices with substantial reforms that will make changes in people's lives today and help direct the conversation forward all over the country," Mendoza told the committee.

Republicans on the panel, however, said they were skeptical the state of Illinois had the ability to control what happen in a national, or even international pharmaceutical market.

"These are issues that far surpass the scope and jurisdiction of the state of Illinois," said Rep. Tom Demmer of Dixon, the Republican spokesman on the committee. "And for us to take the perspective and say we're going to come in as the Illinois Legislature and tell a manufacturer what they can and can't charge, I think is an impossible distortion of markets. And what's going to end up happening is, people won't be in Illinois."

Meanwhile, Rep. Deanne Mazzochi, an Elmhurst Republican, argued that regulating prices in the private sector could end up costing taxpayers in the form of higher prices in Medicare and Medicaid. That's because those programs buy drugs at below wholesale prices, and drug companies make up the difference by charging private insurance plans more.

"If you set a ceiling on reimbursement on the private side, then the net effect of that is that prices for Medicare and Medicaid are going to have to go up to compensate," she said. "Because if you can't charge higher prices on the private-sector side, then you're going to have to boost up everything on the Medicaid-Medicare side. So it kind of winds up being a bit of a wash."

Hearings on the prescription drug market in Illinois will continue Friday with a joint meeting in Chicago of Guzzardi's prescription drug committee and the House Insurance Committee.

The legislation pending in the House includes:

House Bill 2880, by Guzzardi, imposing a tax on some drug price increases that exceed the rate of inflation.

House Bill 3493, by Guzzardi, establishing a state board to regulate drug prices in a way similar to utility rate regulation through the Illinois Commerce Commission.

House Bill 156, by Rep. Mary Flowers (D-Chicago) requiring drug companies to disclose information about their pricing systems, including how much they spend on marketing.

And House Bill 1441, by Rep. Anna Moeller (D-Elgin) allowing the state to be a licensed wholesaler of imported drugs from Canada.

THE BOONE COUNTY JOURNAL

--In Our Opinion--

Finding Balance in Boone County

People move to rural Boone County to enjoy a rural, suburban lifestyle. They have worked hard to live the good life and make the home they have achieved. But imagine how uncomfortable it would be to have day and night mining going on in your backyard. This is what is potentially going to happen in the Graham/Town Hall Road area.

How would residents in another area of the county with a rock outcropping feel if this sort of mining occurred in the Riverside/Spring Creek area?

A company from Hoffman Estates came to Boone County and told the County Board to change the zoning laws, that protect Boone Countians. And give us your natural resources at Graham/Town Hall. The county board replied "Sure, that's economic growth." Now the company says change them again so we can increase our profits at the expense of the neighbors. What will the County Board say this time?

Fourteen years later, no one can say for sure if a special use permit allowing this company to mine the quarry on Town Hall Road was ever legal. But an outside legal opinion--sought by the states attorney's office--says "no."

Boone County Soil and Water issued a report warning of the potential for aquifer contamination at the Town Hall quarry as follows:

"This site rates as having high potential for aquifer contamination, according to the Illinois Geological Survey...Future land use at this site should be carefully planned, taking into account the geological sensitivity to groundwater contamination in this area. Water quality issues could arise due to the removal of surface materials that may filter out potential contaminants and expose local aquifers to the surface environment. Local water supplies could be affected by further expansion and development of the quarry on this site...The Boone County Soil & Water Conservation District Board has an unfavorable opinion of the proposed land use change."

Today, the company and the county board are at work to renew a special use permit, doubling the term to 10 years, and expanding the hours of operation, starting as early as 5AM and as late as 10PM. Local residents in the area of Graham/Townhall Roads are objecting. A resident of the area says that "... the way in which the county handled the original settlement agreement/special use permit, was not legal and the neighbors have paid the price for it! To make matters worse, the county board seems to keep trying to help the quarry at the neighbor's expense. Simply put, the board has an obligation to protect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens, and not to make a business more profitable at the public's expense.... What's wrong with this picture?"

The company Plote Construction, Inc. and its subsidiary, Beverly Materials LLC, sued Boone County in 2005 and ended up with out of court "settlement agreement" which only a savvy lawyer could tell if it was a good or bad agreement that followed Illinois law. Nevertheless, the County Board subsequently skipped legal procedures required by Illinois State Law and granted a special use permit, because the terms of the settlement agreement required that the county ignore due process.

When the original 5-year special use permit expired in 2010, there was no renewal applied for by Beverly-Plote. Spurred by many complains from residents surrounding the quarry, the county began to investigate. From investigating the complaints, the county discovered the permit had expired several years before. Among other complaints, the quarry had been operating outside the permitted hours of operation. States Attorney, Michelle Currier, took the company to court, citing several other violations as well. Judge Tobin, the 17th Judicial Circuit Judge, recused himself because the County Board Chairman at that time initiated an ex parte contact with the judge, asking that the judge go easy on the Beverly-Plote.

Boone County, having won its case in circuit court, and then again at the appellate level, generously agreed to give the company a 14-month probationary period permit to see if the company would comply with the original special use permit.

Yet, within a few months, the County Board gave Beverly/Plote a 5-year renewal of the special use permit, nearly a year before the end of the probationary period. The County Board reaction undermined the success of the states attorney and gave the quarry permission to ignore the probationary period. This special use permit was again granted in a zoning area (A1) where mining is prohibited (even by special use) and remains so to this day. The county believes that Beverly/Plote's current permit expires at the end of March this year.

In its renewal application, Beverly/Plote is asking for longer hours of operation as part of the new special use permit. It would like to begin at 5AM and work until 10PM six days a week. Current permitted quarry hours are 6AM to 6PM. The quarry is also requesting the length of a new special use permit be increased from 5 to 10 years.

Late last year Plote, petitioned the City of Belvidere to annex the quarry into the city, if Plote were granted a 30-year special use permit and expanded hours of operation. That effort seemed to have died on the vine due to the lack of support from Belvidere City Council members, who sought continuity of government in the community rather than the city being used as a pawn against the county.

We believe that an 8AM to 5PM, 5-year permit would provide some relief to those who have been negatively impacted and still allow Beverly/Plote to quarry the site. Notwithstanding more reasonable hours, the groundwater contamination issue should also be addressed.

By granting a more reasonable special use permit, this would protect the health, safety and welfare of the community. That is the standard for granting a special use permit. While the residents of the Graham/Town Hall area will never be made whole, being reasonable will help.

Why would the County Board so heavily support Beverly/Plote and work against the Graham/Town Hall Residents?

Seriously, what are they thinking?

We certainly do not discourage economic growth, but perhaps a better definition of "economic growth" is in order. (At least recognize if it is not your ox being gored, it still matters.) Perhaps County Board members are eager to be "players" and excited to be "part of something big," but that does not fulfill the obligation of a being a responsible County Board member: Protect the health, safety and welfare of the community.

Or might some County Board member or other well-connected individual(s) have a vested interest in granting this special use permit?

The Graham/Town Hall Road neighborhood has many voters who have many friends. How many votes in Boone County live in Hoffman Estates? If this expanded special use permit is granted, these residents should consider strongly making their feelings known at the next county election.

A Public Notice is an important tool in assuring an informed citizenry; a conduit of information from the government to the public. Notices are mandated by legislatures to make sure there is a public window into the activities of governments, officers of the court and others holding a public trust. Among the most common types of public notices are: hearings, government budgets, notices of contract bids, foreclosures, probate notices, adoptions, and dissolution of marriages, name changes and assumed business names. There are four key elements to a public notice:

Independent: A public notice is published in a forum independent of the government, typically in a local newspaper.

Archivable: A public notice is archived in a secure and publicly available format.

Accessible: A public notice is capable of being accessed by all segments of society.

Verifiable: The public and the source of the notice can verify the notice was published, usually by an affidavit provided by the publisher.

Enabling an informed citizenry through newspaper public notices helped America to develop participatory democracy where it counts: where money is spent, policy is made and futures charted. Public notices by government and private parties are so tightly woven into the American fabric that many citizens may take them for granted. Located in easily found sections of the newspapers, public notices reach out to interested readers, leading them to opportunities. Voices are expressed on taxation, communities are formed around planned public improvements, and assets are saved from loss to unworthy creditors – all as a result of public notices.

Kinzinger Faces Scrutiny for Criticism of Wisconsin Governor

By Cole Lauterbach | Illinois News Network

Wisconsin Gov. Tony Evers is considering whether some discipline is in order after being publicly criticized by U.S. Congressman Adam Kinzinger, R-Channahon.

Kinzinger, of Illinois, criticized Evers' decision to remove Wisconsin National Guard members from the U.S.-Mexico border.

Kinzinger is a Lieutenant First Class and pilot in the Wisconsin National Guard. After returning from a deployment in Arizona, he took to Twitter to criticize the newly elected Wisconsin Democrat in a series of posts that outlined the work that he and others had been doing there.

"@GovEvers, your guardsmen saved many lives and protected our country on this mission. Did you go visit them on the border to see for yourself? Or did you make your decision based solely on politics?" he wrote Monday. "I'm grateful to my fellow Wisconsin Guard members, and I'm deeply disappointed you won't let them do what they are trained to do for the good of the country. @GovEvers, I hope you'll reconsider."

The Associated Press reported Tuesday that Evers' office was looking into possibly disciplining Kinzinger.

Maura Gillespie, Kinzinger's congressional spokesman, defended Kinzinger's ability to freely speak his mind when not actively serving in the Guard.

"@RepKinzinger is off-duty & has the right to exercise his freedom of speech as he so chooses," she said. "Implying a member of the Guard can't speak freely as a civilian is absurd & unfounded, as the UCMJ & Wisconsin code apply to members on pay service."

After his deployment, Kinzinger also expressed support for President Donald Trump's emergency declaration to secure funds for a border wall, saying it wasn't the ideal way to go about it, but the executive action was necessary for national security.
